TROOPS INVADE FOREIGN COLONY

REPORT AMERICANS SAFE IN SHANGHAI; BRITISHER KILLED

Nationalists Begin To Restore Order—Many Dead In Streets

LONDON, March 22.—Dispatches received here this afternoon declared that hundreds of northern troops have broken through the barriers of the international settlement in Shanghai.

If confirmed these dispatches may be the forerunner of grave news, for the fleeing northern troops have been engaging in looting in the native city and they may be expected to come into early conflict with the foreign forces within the international settlement. A conflict between the foreign troops and the Chinese holds grave possibilities.

Foreign office advices received during the afternoon stated that the situation in Shanghai is well in hand and the foreign settlements are safe. This was accepted here as indicating that the Chinese troops which were reported to have broken through the barriers had been driven out without serious conflict.

Later dispatches stated that the northern troops were disarmed and ejected from the international settlement.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—No Americans have yet been killed or wounded in Shanghai's reign of terror, according to a dispatch to the navy department this morning from Admiral C. S. Williams, commander of the Asiatic fleet.

The admiral's report, however, told of indiscriminate firing on foreigners, resulting in the death of one punjabi (British) soldier, and the wounding of a number of other foreigners.

SHANGHAI, Mar. 22.—Bitter fighting is reported in progress in the Markham road district of the western outskirts of Shanghai, between Cantonese troops and surrounded northern soldiers.

The streets are reported to be thickly strewn with the dead bodies of civilians and soldiers.

The nationalist forces today assumed complete control over the entire Chinese area of Shanghai, except the Chapel district where 3,000 Shanghai troops are still holding out.

The first division of the nationalist army today is patrolling numerous areas in the native city, restoring some semblance of order there, following the wildest sort of disorders which lasted throughout the night and part of the morning. The city is now beginning to settle down to quieter mien.

DRAW VENIRE FOR TRIAL HERE FRIDAY

Jury trial of Floyd Watts, near Springfield, on a statutory charge brought by his seventeen-year-old niece, Hazel Stewart, is set for Friday morning at 9 o'clock in Probate Court.

The jury will be selected from a venire of fourteen names drawn from the jury wheel in Common Pleas Court as follows:
Frank Shigley, Silvercreek Twp.; C. P. Deal, Sugarcreek Twp.; Morgan Wells, Bath Twp.; Mary A. Whitmer, Xenia; V. L. Higgins, Xenia; Floyd Weaver, Caesar Creek Twp.; John Shadrach, Xenia; William Evans, Bath Twp.; Della Johnson Xenia; Alice Jurkat, Cedarville; A. E. Swaby, Cedarville; Mary F. Bryson, Xenia; John Munger, Beaver Creek Twp.; and J. C. Funk, Xenia.

MUST HAVE BEEN!

HAMILTON, O., March 22.—Charles "Kid" Jones, of Richmond, Ind., today was to be arraigned in police court here on a charge of drunkenness. Last night he was alleged to have boasted to police that he had robbed a San Francisco and a Kansas City bank and "blew the $2,000,000 in ten days." The officers said that Jones seemed to be "pretty well intoxicated."

HIGH WATER COSTLY

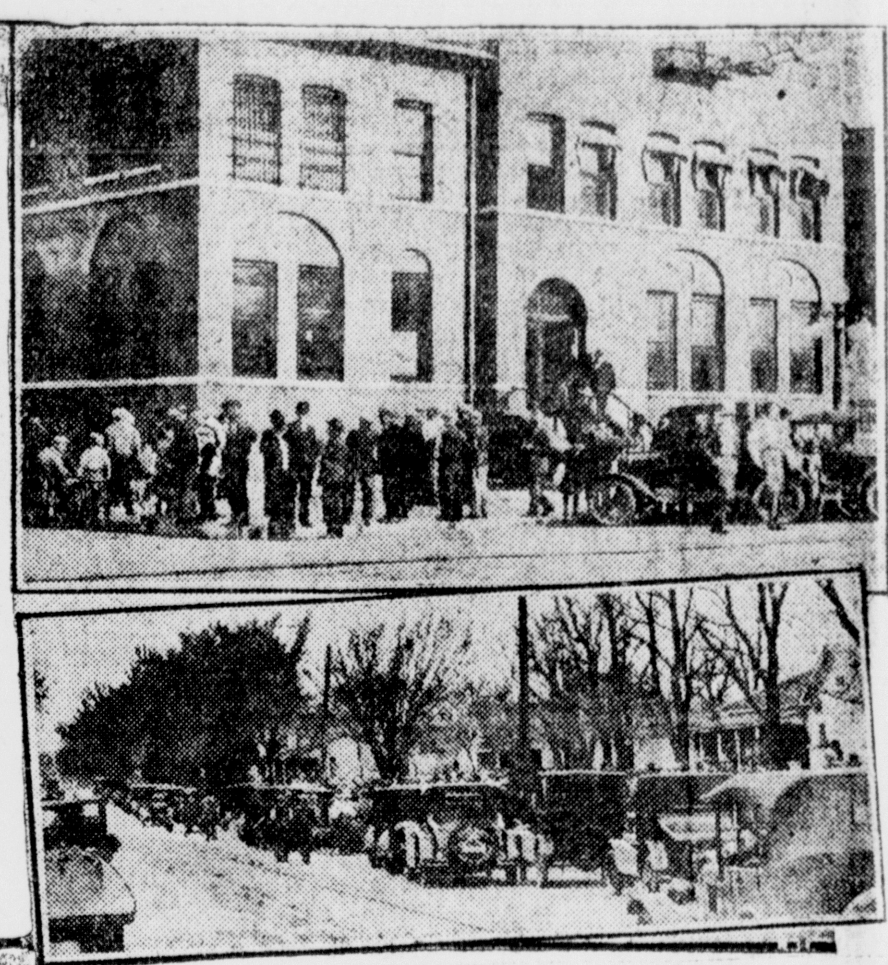

ASHLAND, O., March 22.—High water resulting from the week end downpour will cost Ashland County $20,000, it was estimated today by County Surveyor Howard Fetzer. Two bridges and thirty culverts were washed out and several other bridge structures were weakened. The southern section of the county was hardest hit.

"MYSTERY" LETTER IN SAPIRO SUIT

MILITIAMEN QUIET COFFEYVILLE MOB

Miss Julia Mooney, 19 (upper photo), and Miss Margaret Akers, 17, were victims of Negro intruders in their homes in Coffeyville, Kas. The attacks on the girls so incensed citizens that military rule had to be invoked to quell rioters who sought to avenge the attacks. On the right, crowd assembling around the Coffeyville, Kas. city hall jail after the attack. A mob of about 1,500 persons attempted to seize Negroes held in connection with the attacks by storming the jail. Photo was taken in afternoon and it was not until late at night that rioting broke out. The lower photograph shows motor car caravan of possemen following bloodhounds into the Coffeyville Negro district where suspects were arrested.

PERFECTING PLANS FOR LEGISLATION ON APPROPRIATIONS

COLUMBUS, O., March 22.—Plans were being perfected today by Sen. C. C. Bolton and Rep. Martin Dodd, senate and house Republican floor leaders respectively, for action at the earliest date possible on proposed legislation dealing with taxation and appropriations.

A joint meeting may take place today or Wednesday, between the senate and house special committees which are endeavoring to map out a financial program. Effort will be made, it was stated to have these committees agree upon a program to be submitted to separate caucuses of senate and house Republicans for ratification.

Governor Vic Donahue Monday night sent a message to the legislature calling attention to State Auditor Tracy's figures relative to the legislators deal as soon as possible with the state treasury deficit.

The governor repeated his recommendations, contained in his legislative message of January 5, last, that state excise and corporation franchise taxes be increased.

Without a dissenting vote, the senate confirmed Governor Donahue's appointment of Attorney Russell J. Burt, Canton, as a member of the board of trustees, Kent State Normal School, for the term ending May 17, 1929.

The senate unanimously passed the Dearmond bill, extending the term of county surveyor from two to four years, and the Gillen bill, making available for law library funds the same percentage of liquor fines as is allowed on other criminal cases. Both bills now go to the house.

WIFE OF SENATOR SMOOT "VERY LOW"

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Mrs. Alpha E. Smoot, wife of Senator Reed Smoot (R), of Utah, who has been suffering from grip, was reported to be "very low" today. The children of Mrs. Smoot who are out of the city have been summoned.

TO ATTEND MEET

CINCINNATI, O., March 22.—A delegation of officials of the local automobile club left here today for Washington, D. C., to participate in the third annual conference of the American Automobile Association.

WANTED IN DAYTON

AKRON, O., March 22.—Police are holding Leroy Miller as a fugitive from justice, who is said to be wanted at Dayton, Ohio, in connection with the killing of Bennie Smith in 1915.

UNION AND OPERATORS PREPARE FOR PENNSYLVANIA STRUGGLE

Crushing Of Non-Union Pittsburgh Coal Co., Aim Of Union Attack—Plan Walk-Out Of Miners There April 1

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 22.—A strongly financed fight on the part of the United Mine Workers of America will begin April 1 in western Pennsylvania, according to statements made today both by union officials and mine operators. The outcome of the struggle will have tremendous effect on the soft coal industry.

Because of its magnitude, John L. Lewis, president of the miners, has selected Phillip S. Murray, international vice president, as commander in chief of the union forces in this field. Murray is on the ground laying plans to pull out the workers after April 1.

Until 1925 western Pennsylvania, known as District No. Five, was preponderantly union. In August of that year, the Pittsburgh Coal Company, rated as the world's largest soft coal producer, broke with the union, lowered wages, and since has maintained a non-union policy. Several smaller companies followed the Pittsburgh Coal Company's example.

J. D. A. Marrow, president of the company has issued a statement to the miners, which says, in part:

"We will never sign a scale with any union again. We will always have open shop mines. We will never run any mine any way but open shop."

Replying to this challenge, Murray said today, "we are going to lick the Pittsburgh Coal Company."

Already it has been a costly fight for the Pittsburgh Coal Company, which last year reported a loss of $2,114,676. Despite this, the company, in which the Mellon and other great financial interests have heavy holdings, is prepared to pour in millions more to operate non-union.

"We are ready to spend large sums of money to continue our open shop policy," said C. E. Leshner, executive vice president.

Union officials charge openly that the Mellon and Rockefeller interest and the Pennsylvania railroad are behind the plan to crush the union. In support of this statement Murray said the Pennsylvania railroad was the greatest single factor in destroying the Jacksonville agreement. He pointed out that the railroad is hauling coal 700 miles from Kentucky non-union fields, paying heavy freight to other railroads, to avoid buying union mined coal.

TOLEDO, March 22.—The storage plant of the Sinclair Refining Company lay in ruins today, following a disastrous fire late Monday. Loss was estimated at $150,000.

Clyde McGiffen, a fireman, was seriously burned when a quantity of oil exploded.

The fire is believed to have started when an electric bulb fell from its receptacle in the ceiling, igniting the oil soaked floor of a warehouse.

THREE TRAINMEN KILLED BY BLAST

SALEM, Ill., Mar. 22.—Three members of the train crew on a Chicago and Eastern Illinois fast freight train were killed today when the boiler of the engine exploded, completely demolishing the locomotive.

The bodies were badly burned by escaping steam and were crushed in being hurled from the engine. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

MRS. JAMES BECK, JR. SEEKING DIVORCE

PARIS, March 22.—Mrs. James M. Beck, Jr., the former Adelaide Wilmerding, has filed a petition for divorce here. The Becks were married in New York on October 17, 1917 and have one child. Mrs. Beck charges desertion. They have lived in London for some time.

Beck is the son of the former solicitor general of the United States.

FIVE STUDENTS ARE IN HOSPITAL AFTER RIOTS WITH POLICE

Eight Johns Hopkins
Men Held—Class
Fight Blamed

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 22.—A class riot between nearly 500 students of Johns Hopkins University wound up here early today with five of the students in the hospital and eight others under arrest. Scores suffered bruises and minor hurts.

It took the entire police and fire departments of Annapolis to quell the rioters. Streams of water directed by the firemen finally overcame the collectors after the interior of the state armory had been wrecked, and Mayor Allan B. Howard had been struck by a paving stone.

The trouble started earlier in the evening at Baltimore where the university is located, and ended here when about 200 sophomores stormed the state armory where the freshman class was holding its annual dinner.

Everything that was loose in the armory was thrown into the fight. By the time the police got on the scene it was a pitched battle. They used their nightsticks freely but without avail and finally the fire department was called out. After a hard fight, in which the police drew their guns and fired in the air, and the firemen used their hoses, the rioters withdrew.

Those in the hospital are: Benjamin Brack, Joseph G. Turnbull, Gladstone Beabekopf, Irving K. Gordon and Hayward B. Street, all of Maryland.

In the police station are: Arthur T. Bennett, T. W. Ziegler, James Parker, M. B. Corkran, Stuart Huey, Joseph Luckie, all of Maryland, and Joseph Richards of Tulsa, Okla.

None of those injured will die, according to hospital authorities. Battered heads and one broken arm comprise the list of wounds.

State's Attorney A. Theodore Brady announced today the students will be charged with destruction of state property. The damages to the armory are estimated at about $4,000.

SUSPECT IN AKRON MURDER ARRESTED

AKRON, O., March 22.—Detectives were to go to Montreal, Canada, today to return a man believed to be Joe Molnar, of this city, wanted here for questioning, in connection with the slaying of Michael Klotz, 59, March 12.

The suspect was arrested in Montreal yesterday.

Klotz, an unlicensed doctor, was stabbed to death by a man to whom he had refused to furnish medicine. Mrs. Klotz was wounded by the enraged "patient," who wielded a large knife.

OHIO WILL GET TWO MILLION FOR ROADS

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Federal highway allotment for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1927 aggregated $73,125,000, the bureau of public roads announced today.

The amount will be allocated to the various states, for use on approved projects within the 185,000-mile network of the national highway system.

With the state shares added to this figure, the appropriation will add between 6,000 and 8,000 miles of hard-surfaced highway through out the country.

Allotment for Ohio amounts to $2,762,209.

PURSE "LIFTED"

CINCINNATI, O., March 22.—Percy McCartin, of Cleveland, today was minus a purse containing about $40 which was "lifted" from his pocket here last night, he told police.

PLAINTIFF TRIES TO LOCATE MESSAGE TO AUTHOR OF STORIES

Defense Victor In Dispute Over Type Of Evidence

FEDERAL BUILDING, Detroit, March 22.—Hints of a "missing letter" gave a touch of mystery today to the Ford-Sapiro million dollar libel suit.

With William J. Cameron, editor of the Dearborn Independent on the stand, counsel for Aaron Sapiro sought a letter believed to have been written Harry H. Dunn, special Ford investigator, on August 3, 1923, opening the Ford crusade against a "Jewish ring." The search was futile because Cameron said he could recall no such letter and Ford's counsel blocked other questions.

William H. Gallagher, Sapiro attorney, pointed out however that a telegram was sent Dunn on August 3, saying a special delivery letter had been mailed him. The first letter to Dunn put in evidence, was dated August 6. This apparent discrepancy plainly worried Gallagher.

A chain of circumstantial evidence, tending to show that Ford's attacks on Sapiro, were inspired by his hatred for the Jewish race, was slowly being forced today.

Counsel for Sapiro produced the first link at the trial in federal court here by placing in the record a letter from the Dearborn Independent ordering Harry H. Dunn, Ford investigator, to gather information about "Jewish boys (who) are putting the works on the farmers." A second letter, written some time later revealed Dunn as investigating Sapiro for the first time. In this document, Dunn told the Ford publication that "you have been waiting for a long time for this story about co-operatives and the Sapiros."

A third link, it was said, will be forged in the chain by introduction of a "surprise" letter revealing how the information about Sapiro was gathered in the field by the Ford investigator. The contents of this letter were being closely guarded by Sapiro's attorneys.

The Ford attorneys, led by Senator James A. Reed (D) of Missouri, and Stewart Hanley, of Detroit, meanwhile rejoined over their victory when the court ruled all evidence in the auto king's hatred for the Jewish race in general. The ruling, made on a single question, will apply to like questions in the future, the court said later.

PRINCE LAUNCHES TUMBLING SEASON

LONDON, Mar. 22.—The Prince of Wales took his first tumble of the present racing season today. Riding in a point to point race in the Pychley hunt, the prince was thrown at the first fence jump. He was uninjured. He was riding "Cark Courtier," the horse which he rode to victory in the Grenadier Guards races last week.

Although several persons rushed to the aid of the Prince, he brushed them away with protests that he was not hurt, but it was apparent that he was greatly annoyed at the tumble.

DOWN GOES GAS!

CLEVELAND, O., March 22.—A price-slashing war between two west side filling station corporations, which started here at noon Monday, was continuing today, causing traffic police much worry. During one rush hour "gas" was selling at ten cents per gallon.

OHIOAN VICTIM OF INFLUENZA ON SHIP

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—The names of four army privates who died of influenza aboard the transport Chateau Thierry, enroute from New York to San Francisco, were given today by the war department, as follows:

Gordon P. Brown, Westville, Champaign County, Ohio; Albert C. Johnson, Bennett, Wisconsin; Daniel Serfozo, Bridgeport, Conn., and Grover L. Daniel, Rocky Mount, N. C.

There are fifty-eight cases of influenza on board. The transport is due in San Francisco tomorrow night.

ATTORNEY GENERAL TO RULE ON BANKING DEPARTMENT RIGHTS

COLUMBUS, O., March 22.—A new legal question, concerning the right of the state banking department to participate in the control of assets of the trust department of a national bank, has been submitted to Attorney General Turner for a ruling.

The request for a ruling came in the case of the Central National Bank of Marietta, which is in the hands of a receiver. The trust department of the bank has on deposit in the state a part of its assets, as required by state banking laws, although the bank itself operated under a federal charter. The attorney general is asked to decide whether the state banking department has any legal authority to participate in the disposition of the trust department's assets, or in the appointment of a receiver to dispose of such assets.

The question, it is said, has never been raised before.

Attorneys of the department are bringing the question, and are expected to hand down a ruling within a few days.

SALESMAN SLEW ART EDITOR BECAUSE HE LOVED MAN'S WIFE

Feared Victim's Wife Would Tell Of His Deception

NEW YORK, Mar. 22.—Henry Judd Gray and Mrs. Ruth Snyder, arraigned today in Jamaica police court charged with the brutal murder of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, art editor of Motor Boating, flatly repudiated their "confessions" of the crime, made to police after their arrest, and stated that all their admissions had been made under duress.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Henry Judd Gray, 31, corset salesman of East Orange, N. J., confessed early today to the murder of Albert Snyder, art editor of the magazine "Motor Boating," according to District Attorney Newcomb, Queens County.

Snyder's body was discovered on his bed in his home in Queens Sunday morning. He had been killed by being struck over the head, after which he had been garroted with a piece of picture wire.

Gray admitted, the district attorney said, that he slew the art editor with a window sash weight wrapped in paper, and asserted that he was assisted in the crime by Mrs. Ruth Snyder, the victim's wife. Gray said he had been the paramour of Mrs. Snyder for some time, and that their illicit love and thoughts of the heavy insurance carried by Snyder had been motives for the crime.

The confession, which dovetails in many respects with that related late Monday by Mrs. Snyder, was wrung from Gray by determined police questioning a few hours after Gray had been brought here from Syracuse, where he was arrested yesterday morning.

The confession followed the collapse of an alibi which Gray had sought to establish by an attempt to prove that he was in Syracuse at the time of the murder.

Sixteen-year-old "Peaches" late yesterday was swept from her life of ease by the decision of Supreme Court Justice A. H. Senger which granted Browning a separation while denying his youthful bride her counter claim. The court's decision deprived "Peaches" of her only income—the $30 a week paid her weekly by Browning as temporary alimony.

"PEACHES" LOSES- "DADDY" IS HAPPY

NEW YORK, Mar. 22.—Edward Browning, millionaire real estate man, is "through" with "Peaches" Heenan Browning and has decided that she will never "squeeze another cent out of him."

Debonair and evidently in the best of spirits, Browning made this announcement to reporters today when he arrived at his office.

FARM LOAN BOARD MEMBER MAY QUIT

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Elmer S. Landes, Ohio's representative on the federal farm loan board, has received an offer to become president of First National Bank, at Wooster, Ohio, his home, he told International News Service today, but he has not yet decided whether he will retire from the farm loan board to accept the connection.

Members of the Ohio delegation in congress are understood to have conferred with President Coolidge relative to appointment of a successor to Landes on the farm loan board, in the event he decides to retire.

SLAYER SOUGHT

CINCINNATI, O., March 22.—No trace has been found of the slayer of Walter Hall, 42, laborer, killed Saturday night when he stepped into the path of bullets directed at Mrs. Fannie Nitsche, 42, detectives said today. A New Orleans man is being sought in connection with the shooting, it was said.

GOVERNMENT PLAN TO TERMINATE PACT IS BLOW TO CALLES

Ends Co-Operation In Halting Arms Sent To Rebels

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The American government has decided to terminate the anti-smuggling treaty with Mexico, which has been one of the principal barriers to the revolutionists in Mexico securing arms.

Formal notice to this effect has been served on the Mexican government, it was announced at the state department today.

Although this step on the part of the United States has no relation to the existing embargo on arms and ammunition to Mexico, it will in all probability open the door to considerable smuggling of rifles and war materials across the border.

Recent press dispatches from Mexico have emphasized the growth and scope of revolutionary activities against the Calles government, and the abrogation of the treaty at this time is distinctly a blow to the Calles regime.

The abrogation of the treaty was accompanied by reports that this action presages the eventual lifting of the embargo on arms, but state department officials declined to make any comment on this phase of it.

The treaty provided for an exchange of information on all smuggling originating on either side of the border. On these American "tips" Mexican border authorities have been able to make numerous big hauls, and to effectually stop almost all arms and ammunition.

This exchange of information will now cease, and it is possible that scores of American agents along the border sent there after the treaty was signed, will now withdraw.

The state department's announcement follows:

"The convention between the United States and Mexico to prevent smuggling and for certain other objects was signed December 23, 1925, ratified March 11, 1926, and proclaimed March 18, 1926. It went into effect so far as the United States was concerned upon March 28, 1926, by its terms the convention was to remain in force for one year, upon the expiration of which period, if no notice of a desire to terminate it had been given by either party it was to continue in force until thirty days after each party should give notice of termination."

"Upon due consideration the government has concluded to terminate the treaty at the expiration of the year, and has accordingly it was to continue in force until given the appropriate notice to

ANNE NICHOLS TELLS SECRET OF HER $10,000,000 SUCCESS

ANNE NICHOLS, WORLD'S WEALTHIEST WOMAN PLAY-WRIGHT, AS SHE LOOKS TODAY AT THE PEAK OF HER SUCCESS.

By MARY BLADE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927
NEW YORK, Mar. 22.—Why is "Able's Irish Rose?"
A historic question, this, ranking with such classic inquiries as "How old is Ann?" and "Where was Moses when the light went out?"
Anne Nichols should know the answer, if anyone does. She wrote the play. She has collected some $10,000,000 from it, and she is now collecting more. The motion picture rights which she recently sold for a record price, and a percentage agreement. On her own calculation more than 10,000,000 people have seen it, including scores of erudite critics, who universally have condemned it as a thoroughly bad drama, a circumstance which causes Miss Nichols to laugh merrily.
Anne Nichols is now on her way to Europe to arrange for overseas productions of "Able." On the eve of her departure she confided to an interviewer her own idea of the reasons for "Able's" triumph over the critics. She counted five of them, in this order:
1. Humanity.
2. Humor.
3. Cleanliness.
4. Kindness.
5. Simplicity.
"I believe," said Miss Nichols, "that love is the greatest thing in the world; all love, in all its normal expressions. It is the biggest thing in all our lives—romance, marriage, children. Obviously it is the logical theme for true drama."
"Simplicity, too, that is important. There are vastly more simple plays than there are erudite. Simplicity and kindness. That is what 'Able' tries to teach—the lesson of tolerance and kindness, and I do honestly believe that many people go away from each performance with a little more kindly feeling toward people who may differ from them in opinion."

On grounds of extreme cruelty, Richard Atkins has been granted a divorce from Hallie Atkins in Common Pleas Court.

THOUSANDS HAVE HEPTAIC TORPIDITY AND DON'T KNOW IT
If You Fear An Operation Because of Gall Bladder Trouble or Gall Stones, Watch These Signs.

Perhaps you don't know whether you have this trouble or not, but if you are bothered with dizzy spells, headaches, shortness of breath, gas in stomach and bowels, pressure or sharp pains in right side that often shoot through to the back, coated tongue, bad breath, lack of ambition, weakness, nervousness and nights of restless misery—you probably are a victim of this health destroying menace that fills your system with poison and may mean a dangerous surgical operation unless checked at once!
Folks near or past middle life are especially liable to hepatic torpidity, gall bladder trouble or gall stones—and in the opinion of the writer one of the best things in the world for conditions of this kind is the regular home use of "Klax-Ko" tablets which Sayre's Drug Store and other good drug stores supply on a binding guarantee to refund their small cost if genuinely beneficial results are not obtained inside of a week. Klax-Ko tablets have brought new life and health to hundreds, and they must positively do the same for you or their use will not cost you a penny. Try them today.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda
Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly. For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

THE BUSINESS OF BEING A FATHER

No business is more important than the business of being a father. This is the opinion of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., head of one of the world's greatest business enterprises. Even though the directing of the vast industries and the management of huge fortunes may demand a man's time and attention, he cannot shift his responsibilities as a father to the shoulders of others, according to Mr. Rockefeller.

In an address he delivered at Princeton university on behalf of the fathers of the university's undergraduates Mr. Rockefeller declared that "just as the child instinctively looks to his father for food, clothing and shelter, so he turns first to him for companionship. If we fathers respond to his natural yearning and become the pals of our boys," "we may have their confidence and friendship from the outset."

"If, on the other hand, they find us so much occupied with our business or our pleasure that we have no time for them and their interests, their youthful longing for the companionship of their fathers is quickly chilled and their affections and confidence promptly transferred to less worthy companions."

"It is a wonderful thing, this business of being a father. As we get on in life I imagine many of us feel that to have given the world one clean, honest, God-fearing son, with an active sense of his responsibilities and obligations, is about as large a contribution to our day and generation as any father can hope to make."

"May I introduce my second point by referring to my own father, who was just such a friend to me as I have been speaking of. In all the years of my close association with him, from earliest childhood, I cannot recall his ever having told me what to do. But no influence in my life has been as powerful as the silent influence of his example."

"Boys and girls of the present day are pretty shrewd and penetrating. We cannot live one thing and advocate another to them. We may think they are brutally frank, but they must do them the justice of admitting that they abhor hypocrisy. If we want our boys to take a worthy part in the world's work we must be their example. To do so may be at times irksome and trying, it may cramp our style, but there is no alternative."

THE WALKING INFANT

The five-weeks-old son of a Chicago doctor is reported to have walked unaided across a room in the family home, before an astonished and admiring group of news paper men and the proud father.

The doctor explains that he has developed this unusual strength in his infant son by use of artificial sunlight. Every day the baby is given a fifteen-minute bath of ultra-violet rays. Every-day, too, the child is put through a series of exercises designed to strengthen his muscles. He sleeps on a broad board with a pad and pillow.

Just what is gained by speeding up the baby's development in this way is not explained in this news story. Whether this unusual strength at five weeks will be of benefit to the later health and happiness of the boy and man remains to be seen. Perhaps it is a very fine thing and quite in line with scientific progress. But somehow it seems like fictitious progress. One can't help feeling for the forced baby.

The Theatre

Corinne Griffith has joined United Artists!

Ending weeks of speculation in the motion picture industry as to the future affiliation of the noted star, announcement was made that Joseph M. Schenck has signed her to a long-term contract.

In disclosing details of the arrangement which associates Miss Griffith with the organization comprising Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Norma Talmadge, Constance Talmadge, Gloria Swanson, John Barrymore, Buster Keaton, Vilma Banky, Ronald Colman, Joseph M. Schenck, D. W. Griffith, Samuel Goldwyn, Morris Gest and other famous stars and producers, John W. Constable, Jr., general manager of the Schenck enterprises, revealed that Corinne is now hurrying from Europe to Hollywood to start her first United Artists feature.

Simultaneous announcement was made that June Mathis, famous motion picture producer and screen writer, has been signed to prepare Miss Griffith's story. There is a possibility, it was said, that the vehicle will be "Garden of Eden," the biggest European stage success at the present time. Mr. Schenck recently purchased the screen rights to "Garden of Eden," which originally was produced in the United States.

The play was taken abroad to achieve its greatest success and now it is slated to return to New York at an early date for another engagement.

One of the objects of Miss Griffith's trip to the continent was to see "Garden of Eden" in its stage form.

Because his friends believed he was "clowning," Eddie Boron, well known screen and stage comedian, nearly lost his life recently at the United Artists studio. Overcome by gas fumes in his dressing room when a heater became disconnected, Boron was unconscious for more than an hour and was resuscitated only after heroic efforts by Dr. Paul McWilliams, studio physician.

Keeping Healthy

by Dr. A. F. Currier

POSSIBILITIES OF A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

There is no disease, with the exception of the malignant diseases, which is more baffling to the skill and wisdom of the physician than what is commonly known as rheumatism.

There are few diseases, perhaps, there are none, which are more common and troublesome at every period of life, but particularly after life has passed the meridian, than rheumatism, and there is no disease which has more victims during cold weather than this.

It comes in a great variety of forms and with varying degrees of pain and stiffness and incapacitation, and because it is so often accompanied with fever it has been insisted by a great many investigators that it is a germ disease. Perhaps it is not a germ disease, in all the varieties of what is designated as rheumatism, but it can be proven that it is such in many of them we shall have gone a long distance toward the solution of the problem.

Now we are informed that such a germ has been found in so-called rheumatic fever by Dr. J. C. Small, bacteriologist of the Philadelphia General hospital and that he has also been able to prepare a serum which may be used for the treatment of the disease. It is reported that this doctor has been searching for this germ for many years and that he has at length been able to isolate it from the blood of those who were suffering with rheumatic fever.

The serum, or antitoxin, which has been produced by careful experimentation with this germ, has been used with satisfactory results thus far upon a certain number of patients; how many I do not know, but upon a sufficient number to show uniform and satisfactory results.

Of course if a treatment of this kind cures one person it is gratifying to a certain extent, but it may have been purely accidental. If it cures a hundred people it is more gratifying, but it must cure them by the thousands before it can be stated to the public that this is the real thing for rheumatism. It must be as unerring in its action as antitoxin in diphtheria before it can be successfully distributed among the people at large, and when and if this can be done, we will have something that will be as valuable, as is forcibly stated by the director of public health in Philadelphia, as insulin in the treatment of diabetes; perhaps even more valuable, for insulin, with all its magnificent

In determining your type you should first decide what is the most becoming silhouette for you to effect.

Silhouettes are most important, because if you can succeed in attaining an attractive outline, you can more easily fill it in with an attractive design.

With regard to silhouette it would be well sometimes if you could see yourself reduced to the simplest terms of line construction. In other words, if you could visualize yourselves as animated squares, circles, triangles, rectangles and ovals and their variations, remembering that everything in design is based upon these simple forms of construction, of which the triangle is the strongest and the oval most graceful.

The rectangle, which is the oblong, straight, narrow silhouette, expresses dignity and staidness, and is suitable to many types, especially the stout woman of well-balanced proportions.

The oval silhouette is for the woman who is fortunate enough to possess symmetry of form and is not for one who has large busts and small hips, nor large hips and a small bust, nor for one who is too plump all over. The oval outline is a truly feminine one and

MAKING MODERN MENUS

Somehow if it's fixed the French way, it tastes a little better. An omelette, for instance.

PLAIN FRENCH OMELETTE

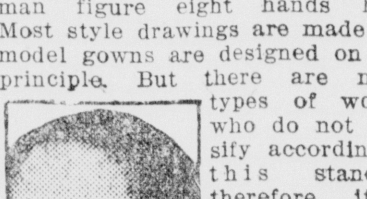

To make a French omelette by the accepted formula, we add all the ingredients to the eggs, which have been beaten together, not separately. The bottom of the omelette is browned and the whole rolled, not folded over. Four eggs are required and four tablespoons of water, salt and cayenne to taste, half a teaspoon of powdered sugar and a tablespoon of butter. Beat the eggs and the seasonings with them thoroughly. Melt the butter in a hot pan and pour in egg mixture. When the underside cooks, lift with a fork so that the raw portion may flow underneath and cook. Repeat this operation until the omelet becomes firm and creamy. Brown the bottom evenly and fold.

How to Achieve Beauty

LET YOUR EASTER COSTUME ENHANCE YOUR BEAUTY
How to Choose the Right Lines
Fashionists term the ideal human figure eight hands high. Most style drawings are made and model gowns are designed on this principle. But there are many types of women who do not classify according to this standard, therefore, it is not an unchangeable criterion of beauty, yet everything we wear should tend to bring us as near that standard as possible, and it is to help you bring yourself up to this beauty standard by selecting clothes that enhance your good looks, that I am devoting my efforts this week.

KELLYGRAMS

by FRED C. KELLY

YOUR STOMACH'S SOCIAL IMPORTANCE

FRED KELLY

I have just been having a little fuss or misunderstanding with my stomach, which, without warning, four days ago entered upon a general strike.

To review briefly our differences, what happened was this: For some months I lived on a farm and worked hard nearly every day mulling about a wood-pile. This form of oil always gives me an appetite worth coming miles to see and my stomach and I had merry times together. But when I came to the city for a few weeks, our relations became less cordial. Gradually my stomach grew surly and critical. Yet it never got downright balky until right at an inopportune time when I was in the midst of a series of experiments to determine what kind of environment is likely to produce the best type of mince pie. To avoid controversy, I at first tried to humor my stomach's every whim, but when it continued a policy of aloofness, I determined to starve it into submission. For three days now I have been devoting myself to fasting.

This has worked well enough in a way. Now that I'm perpetually hungry, I can accomplish my few simple mental tasks in about half the time usually required. But never until I started on this little fasting period, have I realized the social importance of one's stomach.

If you wish to take a charming woman to dinner, to talk with a man about business during the lunch hour, or to visit a friend in his home, you must eat. When you're invited to a home and don't eat, your hostess is vexed and perhaps doesn't ask you again. Lacking a reasonably good appetite, you are handicapped from acquiring such knowledge as may be picked up by contact with your fellows in their hours of ease. Eating is one of the few things left to do. No wonder we overeat!

If I don't succeed in bringing my tummy to terms, I shall suffer as much from loneliness as from hunger. A good stomach is one's greatest social asset!

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, Mar. 22.—New York not having enough to worry about has begun to lose sleep over the question of whether or not a college education pays. The heads of several leading metropolitan employment services say the diploma is no longer the best stepping stone to business success, and that the "culture" achieved in a university is just a bit of a handicap.

Did Gloria Swanson go to college? She did not.

Did Adolph Zukor study trigonometry?

Did the Bambino ever wrinkle his alabaster brow over the intricacies of differential calculus?

Did "Tex" Rickard, or his female mental equivalent, "Tex" Guinan, sit up at nights massaging their mental processes until they could tell the difference between an iambic foot and a paralyzed parallelogram?

If Henry Ford, the Eminent Sparrow Eradicator of Detroit, had ever flirted with the mirth-provoking peculiarities of syntax, do you suppose his Dearborn Independent would have the circulation it enjoys today on the newsstands of Palestine?

About all any college can do for a young man under the existing dispensation, is to teach him to spell God in lower case, tote a hip flask without walking lopsided, and swap effective badinage with a truculent traffic cop.

One of the Horn-rim Brothers of the Metropolitan Free Lance Brigade, occupies a "stew-dyo" in the Gramercy Park section where he is wearing out his young life writing erotic yarns in a brand of "Gawd-forsaken" English that would bring tears to the eyes of a night club hostess.

Everyone knows he's a misfit, except his wife who has high hopes, firmly believing that when the conspiracy among publishers to keep her husband down has finally been dissipated, Balzac will have to move over in the Hall of Fame to make way for Willie.

Thus, every Monday morning the poor lady answers the doorbell and smiles at the butcher, baker, milkman and gas collector, in an endeavor to persuade them to be less mercenary and to share a little of her unbounded faith in the ability and the ultimate success of her goggle-eyed spouse.

I found him the other night sitting in a soiled dressing gown in a litter of books and papers, puffing at a Camel's-hair cigarette and more cheerful than he had been in many a long day.

"Well," said the brave fellow, "the gloom has been pierced. There's a ray of sunshine lighting up the old rat hole."

"Sell a story?"

"No-o-o-o," he said, with his soft-crushed Edgar-Gest-smile, "the Missus has taken a job."

The man who perfected the type-writer has a lot to answer for.

A newspaper man moved into a gingerbread apartment house recently, in the Park Lane section. A canopy extends beyond the front door like the bandaged finger of a juvenile patriot at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the Fourth day of July. There are three hall attendants in uniform, a bevy of switchboard operators and enough gold-leaf and ornate ostentation to equip half a dozen Tut's Tombs.

The newspaper Brother had to get letters of recommendation from Al Smith, Jimmy Walker, his bootlegger, his pastor and the president of the bank before he could sign a lease to take possession of a six and three-quarter, B width, boy's size apartment.

After he had been living there a week a young lady moved into the apartment adjoining. She had henna hair, a nose like the girl in the cigarette ad, violet eyes, a breath like new-mown hay, a chow dog, a liver-colored limousine and no visible means of support.

Several days after her advent she pulled a party and proceeded to make Rome howl.

The newspaper man was incensed. He complained to the owner of the building. If he had to fork over a bushel of gilt-edged references, how come A Lady Like That could horn into the building?

"She had one more reference than you did," said the mystified owner. "She had a letter from John Roach Straton."

There's no use trying. You can't convince the average New York real estate owner that a beautiful single woman with a wedding ring can must better references than the average business or professional man.

WHAT to WEAR and HOW to WEAR IT

By LUCY CLAIRE

Favorite Fashion Adviser of the Smart Set

For a while hats rather slipped out of the picture of importance—not because they were less important, but because other things seemed more important. I have given you today in regard to the general outline of your costume and how closely this is allied to beauty of face for after all it is the masque of your face that should dictate what your general silhouette should be.

Next, I will give you a few specific hints as to how various classifications of women should "stage" their good looks.

have seemed to run their course in the past winter and although a few of them will escape in spring disguise, I do not include them in the general mode.

I like the soft crushed crown of this hat, and slightly rolling brim across one side. Notice how all of the interest is concentrated on one side of the hat—the draped crown, the tailored bow, the turned-down brim and the tiny brush of glycerine feathers.

The material in this hat is the finest silk horsehair and you will find that horsehair comes in all of the smart pastel colors. This type of hat would be ideal for afternoon wear and could be used throughout the summer with light fluffy frocks.

The hat at the right, you will immediately recognize for sport wear because of its plaid pattern, cloche shape, and simple banded trimming. Some of the newest sport shoes are made of strips of woven straw and kidskin so it is quite logical that there should be hats to match. These hand-woven strips have been so carefully worked up and joined that the little hats are soft enough to be rolled up and packed in the week end suitcase. I have seen these in combinations of brown and beige, black and white, two tones of blue, crimson, and grass green. Two blending colors of heavy belting ribbon form the band and extend across the crown to the opposite side.

The large hat which I have pictured in the center, I have a decided preference for. Small hats are chic, I grant you, but large hats are charming and I certainly recommend the possession of at least one. The hat I have selected is of soft beige leghorn with a brim which droops over the eyes and a band of shirred belting encircles the crown and a soft cluster of flat flowers rests upon the brim.

I have told you about coiffures, hats for these coiffures and next I shall tell you about frocks for these hats.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Frowsy women are "neglected," but not by their husbands only.

Introducing 1927 Big League Clubs

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 22.—Dave Bancroft is one big league manager who does not have to issue a pennant challenge to smile at his training camp this spring. With the critics already placing the Cardinals, Giants, Pirates and Reds in the championship zone in the National League race, the Boston Braves are not mentioned in the same breath with this year's title. Which suits Dave Bancroft.

Regardless of the opinions being around on the outside, Bancroft is confident that he will present an improved machine in the 1927 race. There are many who agree with Bancroft.

Since going through the reorganization and rebuilding stages following the collapse of George Stallings' champions, the Braves have become known as a fast stepping club in the spring and fall.

In mid-season, however, the Braves have skidded with such speed that their stretch spurt has failed to hoist them into the first division.

Forgetting everything attached to the past, Bancroft in concentrating on the present and unless there is another blow-up the Braves of this season will furnish a surprise in the National League.

Two new players in particular are exceptionally impressive in the Braves' camp. They are Lance Richbourg, purchased from the Milwaukee Brewers and Herbert Thomas, a graduate of the Providence club.

Unless Richbourg and Thomas fade into training camp bloomers the Braves will have more balance this year than they have had for many days.

Richbourg already has won a permanent home in the outfield in right field. He is the new lead-off batter for the Braves, fast as a streak and a good hitter.

Bancroft now heaves a sigh of relief at his outfield combination for he is all set with Richbourg in right, Jimmy Welsh in center and Eddie Brown in left.

Last year Welsh started in right and Brown in center. With left field a weak spot Brown was moved over there and center was thrown open to Jack Smith and Les Mann.

Welsh already has convinced Bancroft he will be able to handle center field.

The infield problem also appears to have been solved with "Pudgy" Thomas developing into a star. He has taken the job away from "Doc" Gaudreau and Andy High and Bancroft has been so pleased with the play of the Providence youngster that he has placed Eddie Moore at third base.

After playing the far corner for two weeks, Moore told Bancroft he finally had located himself.

Although Jack Fournier was expected to step right in and take possession of first base he is getting plenty of competition from Dick Burrus who refuses to be shoved into the discard. Burrus batted .340 in 1925 and dropped to .270 last season.

When Fournier became afflicted with sore feet Burrus went first and his timely batting has featured

UNCLE STEVE TAKES HORSES TO PREPARE SIXTIETH SEASON

LEBANON, O., March 22.—"Uncle Steve," Phillips, owner, trainer and driver of five Grand Circuit horses has taken his string of racers to Dayton to prepare for his sixtieth racing season, although he will celebrate his 55th birthday anniversary March 27. He is the only living member of the famous Grand Circuit "Big Four," which included "Pop" Geers, Sam Kees, and Charles Fourth.

In July, 1879 Phillips established a record that has never been equaled. In a "David Harum" deal "Uncle Steve" became the possessor of a blind pacer known as Sleepy Tom, value $20. After a few weeks training Phillips drove the blind pacer over a mile track in 2:12.4, a driver owner record that never has been reached.

This season "Uncle Steve" is training Benjamin Todd, Benjamin the Great, Gertrude Direct, Bindillon, and Rex Forbes at the Dayton half mile oval, and will drive Benjamin Todd in the Grand Circuit races at Toledo in competition for the $40,000 grand prize offered for the winner.

Although this is his sixtieth season as a professional reinsman, "Uncle Steve" drove as an amateur about Waynesville and Xenia before taking harness racing seriously.

the early exhibition games of the spring.

Bancroft is enthused over the showing of two young pitchers this spring. They are Henry Wertz and Elmer Hearn. They were erratic last season, but Dandy Bancroft confidently expects the two juveniles to give him the best pitching staff in the league next summer.

Bancroft also feels he has another phenom in Foster Edwards, a lean right-hander. If these three kids deliver, Bancroft insists he may be knocking on the door of the first division, for he also has Larry Benton, Joe Genewich, Hal Goldsmith, George Mogridge, Elmer Knight, Bob Smith and Charley Robertson.

"Pitching will not worry me," said Bancroft in analyzing his club the other day. "I'll stand on them. You can say I am more enthused this spring than any time since I became manager of the Braves."

FOUR DEATHS DUE TO SPRING FLOODS

COLUMBUS, O., March 22.—With four Ohio deaths attributed to the spring flood, and traffic partially crippled in north central and western Ohio, waters of Ohio rivers today were nearing crest stage with prospects of no further damage or danger, according to U. S. Weatherman Alexander, when he predicted little rain for the next twenty-four hours.

Interior rivers are slowly rising at most points and are reported above flood stage at several others, but with the Ohio River many feet below flood stage from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, Alexander reported weather forecasters generally in Ohio believed the worst part of the floods had passed during Monday night.

YOUTH SENTENCED AND THEN PAROLED

After pleading guilty to a grand jury indictment charging grand larceny, Estle Duncan was sentenced to one to seven years in the Mansfield state reformatory by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Tuesday morning and then paroled with orders to account regularly for his future actions to the court.

Duncan was accused of the wholesale looting of the home of the late J. A. Gowdy, Upper Bellbrook Pike, of household furnishings, valued at upward of $100.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Once a School Teacher—

Later a Famous Physician

A young man who was brought up on a farm in Western Pennsylvania qualified for district school teacher. Further pursuing his studies and teaching, he managed to save enough money to put him through medical college. He began the practice of medicine in the new oil section of Pennsylvania, and often rode horse-back through the woods to reach and relieve those who were seriously ill. He was a student of nature, knew and easily recognized most of the medicinal plants growing in the woods.

Finally, he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., where he launched his favorite remedies, and, in a short time, they were sold by every druggist in the land. Today, the name of this man, the late Dr. R. V. Pierce, is known throughout the world. His Golden Medical Discovery is the best known general tonic for building up strength, restoring impaired tissues and enriching the blood. More than fifty million bottles have been sold in the U. S. If your druggist does not sell it, in liquid or tablets, you can obtain a trial pkg. of the tablets by sending 10c to the Dr. Pierce Clinic, in Buffalo, N. Y. —Adv.

- 146 DUCHESS IS AGAIN BESET
BY TRAGEDY

- 147 DUCHESS DOROTHEA MARIE.

- 148 THE Lifetime search for happiness by Duchess Dorothea
Marie, of Schleswig-Holstein-
Gotha, has again uncovered tragedy.

- 149 The son she adopted in her childhood middle age is now attempting to thrust her into bankruptcy. The suit was brought through his father, Prince Albert, of Schleswig-Holstein.

- 150 The nature of the suit was cruelly embarrassing. It was brought at a time when other creditors of the war-impooverished woman had granted her a moratorium, largely on her prospects of inheriting a large part of the fortune of Carlotta, the mad widow of Maximilian, of Mexico, who was closely related to the Duchess.

- 151 The suit charged that the Duchess failed to preserve her once great fortune by not withdrawing it from Germany before inflation wiped most of it out. Her refusal to withdraw it was considered highest patriotism at the time, and even today many Germans look upon the suggestion that she should have subtracted it as a scandal. Once again the Duchess finds herself an innocent person in the midst of unsavory gossip.

- 152 Such sorrows began early for the Duchess. When she was barely seventeen, in 1897, she was betrothed to Duke Ernest Gunther. He was thirty-five, his career had even been a thorn in the side of his brother-in-law, the now deposed Emperor Wilhelm, his escapades had made a disgraceful reputation for himself over Europe, and it had been thrown in his face by several paternal royals when he sought their daughters in marriage.

- 153 No children were born to the couple. It was just as well, the gossips said. They recounted her husband's unstable character and the fact that the Duchess was not only related to the mad Carlotta, but was also a granddaughter of Louise, of Belgium, who fled from her husband's cruelties into the arms of a young Austrian lieutenant of Hussars, and who later went insane. "A course is on the line," the gossips said.

- 154 Her husband died in 1921.

- 155 In her adoption of Prince Albert's son, friends thought she had found happiness in an outlet for her long-pent mother love. So it seemed for a while.

- 156 But once again Dorothea Marie has found sorrow.

- 157 BRINGING UP FATHER

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

Just AMONG US GIRLS

by Kathryn Kenney

"CENSORED!"

Somebody is always taking the joy out of life and generally it's the censor!

Censors are people who have seen everything and are selfish about it. They know that backbone is something that a woman shows even when she hasn't any at all!

Censors cover everything from tracks to backs. The man who is out cut to be a great lover, may find himself cut out altogether!

Passing the censor is like passing the corner drug store; a girl wishes that her skirts were longer! Even if the censor can't take ten ily fall asleep in uncomfortable positions.

Father stays up to see that if he doesn't come home in the same car, he at least comes home in a better one!

The front porch used to be the censorship gallery of the world, but since all the fun is had indoors it has been transferred to the bridge table. You can censor a person's actions as long as it's light, after that you have to use your imagination.

When it comes to censors, they are the biggest cut-ups in the world, and if you want your life-years off a life, he can take ten minutes off a kiss!

A censor is like the man who lives on a court; he never has to go out evenings. After a moving picture has passed the board it is going at a slow walk!

There is a censor in every home, who keeps the children from going out without rubbers and the man of the house from going out at all! Every time daughter passes through the front room mother passes on her make-up. The only thing that she can do for her high color is to lay low!

Sometimes son gets censored when he comes in unless the fam-work cut out for you, call a censor!

He is the person who can't even "see the light" without pulling down the shade to keep it from the rest of the family.

Many a person has found a short cut to success through having his book or play censored. If you can't keep in with the censors, the next best thing is to be out with them. They'll never run out of "gas"!

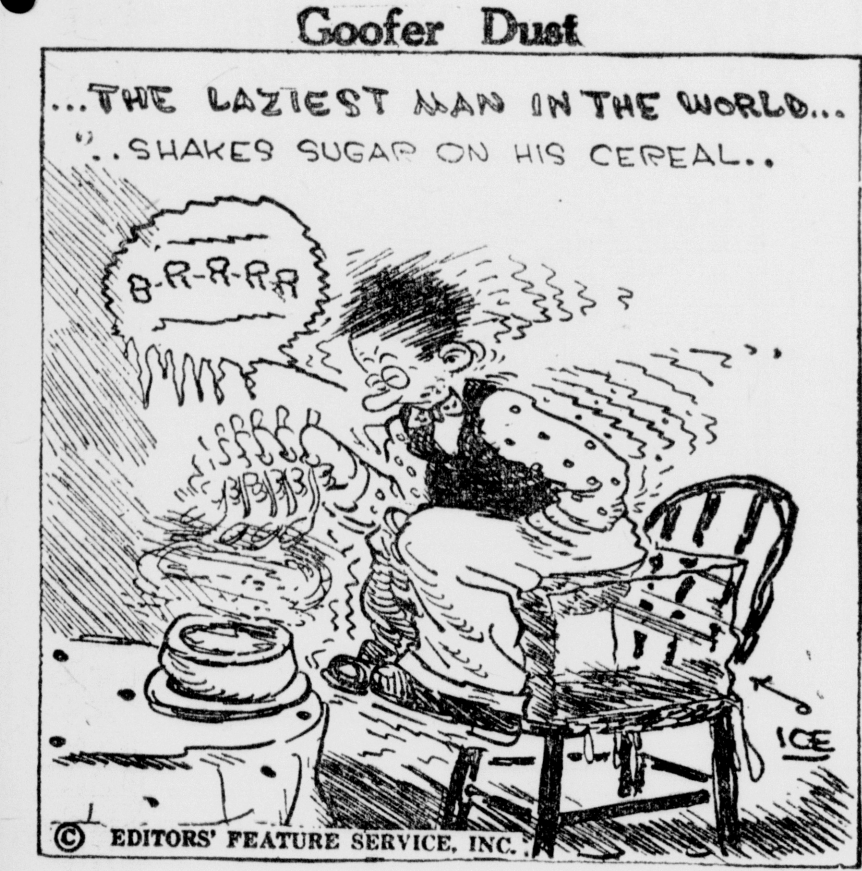

As the little boy said, "I thought a 'censor' was something that swings." Well, that's possible, too!

Many a girl who is "passed by the bored" lives them up!

EXPLAINS ACTION IN VOTING AGAINST BILL ON MONUMENTS

Representative R. R. Cross, Montgomery County, had only the interest of the O. S. and S. O. Home at heart when he cast the single dissenting vote in the house of representatives against the Norton bill, appropriating $150,000 for battle monuments in European countries where American soldiers fought in the World War.

"The Daytonian, a soldier in the late war and an officer overseas, explained his action in full:

"The ex-servicemen planned to aid three movements before the present general assembly. First to make Armistice Day a legal holiday. That has been accomplished. Second, to secure an appropriation for battle monuments and a $500,000 appropriation for a new hospital and other necessary buildings at the O. S. and S. O. Home, to develop sanitation and the comfort of children. It was, and is, my position that the children of men who gave their lives in war should be given attention before monuments are erected. That is the reason I moved to table the Norton bill.

"The children at the Xenia Home are not as well taken care of at this time as are penal and correctional wards of the state. It is impossible under present conditions to segregate children to whom social diseases are a heritage. I could not see my way clear to make the care and comfort of the children of the Ohio soldiers, sailors and marines secondary to monuments on foreign soil to glorify deeds of valor, much as they are deserved. I did not believe that the Norton bill, with $500,000 appropriation, should pass until funds for needed improvements at the Xenia home were assured.

"Veterans of the World War want both these appropriations, but if it is possible at this time to secure only one, the lives and welfare of children should come first. Erection of battle monuments can wait without loss of life or in any manner dimming the glory won by American soldiers."

SAILOR REPORTED KILLED IN ACTION

OWOSSO, Mich., March 22.—News of the death "in action" of Claude Lecureux, 19, a sailor in the United States Navy, was received here today, according to Paul Lecureux, the youth's grandfather.

Announcement of the death of young Lecureux was contained in a message from the bureau of navigation, it was said.

The message gave no particulars as to how or where he was killed but the last letters received from him a week ago indicated he was in Nicaragua.

The boy's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lecureux of Ypsilanti. He had been in the service two years.

HER MAN FOREVER MATED

BEATRICE BURTON author of "Love Bound"

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS for nearly a year when he asks her to free him from their engagement. He tells her that he has fallen in love with her best friend, FAY SHIRLEY.

Sylvia, heart-broken, gives him up, greatly to the satisfaction of her AUNT AGONY, the shrewd old maid who reared her. She calls Ranny Phelps a lazy good-for-nothing and advises Sylvia to marry PETER WILK, a sober bachelor.

As the time draws near for the wedding of Fay and Ranny, Fay tells Sylvia that they have decided they don't love each other enough to marry. And Sylvia, herself, discovers that Fay is really a great deal of her old man, EDDIE CARTER.

On a moonlit May night, Peter gives a picnic in Sylvia's honor. After supper the crowd plays hide-and-seek in the dark woods. Like so many children and Sylvia finds herself paired off with Ranny. He makes love to her and tells her she's the only girl he ever really cared for. And Sylvia says: "All right, then, let's run away and get married now, tonight!"

Long before the end of the honeymoon Sylvia can see that Ranny is restless to get back to his friends in town, so at the end of the first week back they go. They stay with his parents until their own little flat, The Nest, is ready for them.

The first night they are to spend there Sylvia cooks dinner for Ranny. But he comes home three hours late and brings with him Fay and Eddie Carter. They have been drinking and Ranny quarrels with Sylvia. He is having gingerale and sandwiches for them. While Eddie eats up the ruined dinner, Fay and Ranny dance and Sylvia sees them kiss each other. One Saturday night, a week later, Ranny declares himself bored, and leaves the house to go and play cards with Eddie Carter's "crowd." Sylvia telephones Fay and asks her to go for a stroll so that she can ask her advice about something.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XIII

SYLVIA and Fay Shirley had been chums for more than ten years.

Ever since they were little bits of girls they had told each other everything about themselves—the things that they thought, as well as the things that happened to them. Sisters could not have been better friends than they were.

The friendship between them was so strong that not even the love affair between Fay and Ranny had spoiled it. It was so deeply rooted that not even Sylvia's bitter jealousy of Fay could kill it now.

And when the two of them met each other tonight at the corner of Pine street and Second avenue in the soft June darkness, they kissed each other like the good friends that they still were and always would be.

"Sure you don't want to go to a movie, dear?" Fay asked, as they linked their arms and started off down the lamplit length of Pine street.

Sylvia shook her head. "No, I want to talk to you," Sylvia answered, and then because she couldn't make up her mind and how best to say what she had to say to Fay, she pulled her over to a milliner's window to look at the hats.

"You'd be a doll in that green hat in the corner, Fay," she said.

Fay looked down at her and laughed. "Honey," she said in a cooing voice, "I know what you wanted to talk to me about, tonight—your upset because you saw me kiss Ranny the other night, aren't you? Well, you needn't be. I don't want your precious lamb. And he doesn't want me."

She drew Sylvia away from the window with its gay display of hats and they walked on.

"Do you want me to tell you something about Ranny?" she asked suddenly.

Sylvia nodded, without a word.

"Well, then, he's the same kind of shallow person that I am," Fay went on. "You know me better than anyone. Sylvia. You know how I'm always falling head-over-heels in love with somebody or other and then falling out of it just as suddenly, and Ranny's just like me. We kissed each other the other night just for the thrill of the thing. I suppose. Neither of us meant it. And we both knew that we didn't."

Sylvia was silent.

She couldn't for the life of her understand that sort of kiss between two people. If a kiss didn't mean anything—if it didn't mean love—where in the world was the thrill in it?

"You needn't be jealous of me, Sylvia," Fay was saying, now, in her clear metallic voice that was like the jingle of silver. "You needn't be jealous of any of the ones that I have seen. It's the ones that I haven't seen yet that you've got to be jealous of! See what I mean?"

Sylvia shook her head. "Well, you know that Ranny's one of the best looking men you've ever gazed upon, don't you?" Fay asked, "and besides that, he's interesting and full of pep. He has what you'd call 'charm' in a woman. And then he always has somebody or other wild about him."

Sylvia reflected that "charm" was exactly what Ranny did have. No matter how angry you were with him, or how disgusted, you just couldn't hate him or avoid him when he smiled at you, with that crooked smile of his. And he had a "way" with him that would have made him attractive even if he had been a one-eyed dwarf!

Understanding Ranny because he's exactly the kind of a fellow that I am," Fay said bluntly, "and that's why we didn't get married, if you want to know. Neither of us had any trust in the other."

Sylvia looked at her sharply. "But, Fay, you'd be true to your husband if you were married, wouldn't you?"

Fay's clear little laugh rippled out on the darkness.

"Of course, I would, crazy!" she said, "but I'd never be the kind of wife that you are, for instance. I'd never sit around and just bling adore Ranny the way you do—I'd still have perfectly thrilling little friendships with other men, just as your wonderful Ranny will go on having them with other girls. And don't think that he won't, either, because he will. He's made that way."

Sylvia's hold on Fay's arm tightened. "Oh, do you think he will, Fay? Do you really think he'll go on having friendships with other women, now that he's married to me?"

Fay nodded cheerfully. "Do I think he will? I know he will," she answered. "Ranny is not a one-woman man. The wonder to me is that he ever married anyone, even you, much as he loves you. He once told me that the thought of getting married was about as welcome to him as the thought of his own funeral."

Sylvia was perfectly silent. Her thoughts went back to the night when she and Ranny had sat together in the woods and she had proposed that they run away and get married. She wondered if Ranny would have run away that night if he had not been drinking—would he have been so eager for her if he had been cold sober? Is it, if the thought of being married was as distasteful to him as Fay had just said it was?

"I'll ask him!" she made up her mind. "I'll ask him tonight when he comes home from the poker game."

At two that morning she was still waiting for Ranny to come home to her. She sat up in bed, propped against the pillows, with a magazine on her knees.

But she was not reading. Her big eyes, as blue as wood violets, stared straight ahead of her at the cover-patterned paper of the room.

How different this life of hers and Ranny's was from marriage as she had pictured it during the enchanted months of their engagement!

She had looked forward to it then, as a sort of sanctuary for both of them—a haven of rest and place for Ranny, away from the workaday world.

She had pictured them in a small white house that would become a home for them and the children they would have, as the years went by. She had seemed to see herself and Ranny in a small white house in a white nursery, or making beds in the yard around that little homestead.

In her mind these things had stood for Marriage, and for Happiness—she had expected that she and Ranny would be pals as well as mates and lovers.

And here she was, alone on a Saturday night, waiting for her husband to come home from the good time that he was seeking outside the four walls of his home! Here she was, tucked into a little flat where other families had lived, and where countless other families would live after she and Ranny moved out a little flat so small that there couldn't possibly be any room in it for a baby.

At that moment she heard him open the door of The Nest and come softly in. A look of surprise flashed across his face as he saw her sitting up in bed.

"What do you think you're doing?" he asked, throwing his hat and coat down on a chair and sitting down on the edge of the bed to take off his shoes. "Lordy, but I'm tired! It's three o'clock—you should have been asleep hours ago."

She got out of bed and knelt down on the floor beside him. "How could I go to sleep until I knew that you were safe and sound, darling?" she asked, and clasped her hands around his head.

Then she pressed it back, so that she could look straight into his steel-blue eyes of his. "Tell me something," she said solemnly, "would you have run away with me that night we eloped if you hadn't been drinking? Do you honestly love me? Tell me."

Ranny gave a short ugly laugh. "Good Lord! This is what I get for going out for an evening's harmless amusement!" he groaned, "tears and reproaches and hysterics!"

Sylvia caught her breath and the tears that seemed always to be ready to fall these days sparkled in her eyes. She shook her head and then she leaned forward and kissed Ranny square on his chiseled mouth.

"No, I'm not having hysterics!" she said, "but Fay told me tonight that you once said you'd rather go to your own funeral than your own wedding."

He jumped up and said "Bah!" with great disgust in his voice. "Why do you listen to things she tells you?" he asked, after a minute of electric silence. "You know she's always had a tongue a mile long! And anyway, whether I wanted to get married or not, the hard cold fact is that I am married. And if you want me to stick, you ought to have better sense than to cry all over the place just because I went out and played cards for a few hours."

"I'm glad you went out and played cards!" Sylvia cried. "I want you to have a good time! I want you to go out with the men and play poker all you care to."

"Well, I won't dare to do it again for a long time," Ranny broke in with a growl. "I lost so much to-night to Eddie Carter that I'll be dead-broke for the next month."

Aunt Agony had given Sylvia a hundred dollar bill for a wedding present.

"Buy what you want with it! I know you'd only laugh at anything I'd get for you to put in that crazy little painted-up gimcrack flat of yours!" she had said, with her splendid nose in the air. "You don't like nice, solid furniture, or good china—any of the things that I'd pick out!"

Sylvia's impulse was to give it to Ranny to play poker with. Then a second idea occurred to her that struck her as being the happiest sort of inspiration.

She would give a party here in the little Nest!

Right here, in his own home, she would give Ranny a gayety, the her's, and the merry-making that he was looking for. He would show him that he needn't set foot outside the door of the flat on Wing street for all the pleasure he wanted from life!

With Fay's expert help she got together all the "makings" of a good party—the jazziest new records for the phonograph, the fruit for a new kind of punch that Fay knew how to make, all kinds of things for sandwiches and salads, cigars and cigars, and flowers.

Half of Aunt Agony's wedding gift was spent by the time she and Fay reached home with their bundles on Saturday afternoon.

By nine everything was ready for the party. And while Sylvia was getting into her one summer evening dress—a soft thing of flowered or gingham—Sally March and the Man from Yale, whose name was Woodward King, arrived.

Sally came dancing into Sylvia's bedroom, all smiles and sparkling eyes and excitement. She held out her left hand to Sylvia, without a word, and showed her the solitary that shone on the third ring finger.

"Woody and I are going to be married in September," she crooned happily. "He asked me to marry him last night—forgive me, darling, if I don't stay here with you and talk to you, won't you? I'm really afraid to leave my Woody out there in the other room with Fay! You know what a witch she is!"

And she was gone.

But it was not Woody that Fay was doing her best to bewitch, when Sylvia walked out into the living room of The Nest, five minutes afterward. The phonograph was blitting out a dance tune and she and Ranny were doing some new steps that were neither a tango nor a Charleston, but a combination of both.

"Isn't that a daisy?" Sylvia heard Fay say, close to Ranny's ear, as they swung past her. The words were nothing but her tone was husky and tender—and her cheek was pressed against his shoulder and her eyes were closed.

"I'll finish this dance with Ranny, Fay," Sylvia said quietly, and took his arm. She knew that she was being not only rude, but foolish, but she didn't care!

Sylvia continues to fight desperately against the boredom of her married life. She gives a gay party which Fay Shirley attends, and the old feeling of jealousy over Ranny is revived.

BEAUTIFYING WOMEN NOW WORLD'S BIGGEST BUSINESS

By BASIL WOON

Author of "The Paris That's Not in the Guide Books" and Correspondent of the Daily Gazette.

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

PARIS, Mar. 2.—The high cost of beauty is well known. The huge fortunes made in face creams, depilatories, hair wash, cosmetics, tooth paste, anti-pests, preparation, eyelash blackeners, bust-builders (and, latterly, bust-removers), keep-down your weight pills, shampoos and so forth, are equally matters of common knowledge.

The subject is interesting, however, so that when a French expert estimates that the beauty business in France, "and doubtless in other countries also" actually exceeds the food business—why, I pass on that information to you.

By "beauty business" the French expert means not only the things listed above, but also everything that goes for woman's personal adornment—gowns, hats, lingerie, shoes, silk stockings, perfumes, jewelry.

In other words, not merely the business of making women beautiful, but the entering to feminine vanity, is the biggest business in France—and possibly the world—today.

Get that, ladies? Bigger than railroads, mines, agriculture! Bigger than banks, shipping, building. In fact, all these are subservient to the dominant trade. Ships carry rich silks and brocades from the Orient to France, and from France westward, the largest single item in transportation statistics is the group of articles exported and created solely for women.

Huge credits for the vanity trade are handled annually by the banks. If an analysis were made it would be found that these constitute, in the aggregate, their biggest item.

And agriculture itself takes second place—for the first time in the world's history. For woman, lovely woman, will spend thrice again for what she puts on her back than for what she puts in her stomach.

This is why the pope's fiat against the present styles has caused such a wave of anxiety to run through the world of trade. In aiming at the vanity of woman, the pope has dealt a blow at what has become the ultimate foundation of modern economies! Doesn't seem possible? But it is.

Our French expert affirms that if the pope's edicts were to be followed by even fifty per cent of Catholic women the dress and millinery trade would receive a blow from which it might never recover—a blow which would react against the banks, the transportation agencies and against everything connected, however indirectly, with the trade in feminine robes.

What this would mean to Paris alone is manifest when it is realized that 400,000 of the 3,000,000 inhabitants of Paris are directly concerned in the dressmaking, millinery or beauty trades. There are 8,000 dressmakers, of whom a bare 200 are first-class. There are 700 beauty shops and as many as forty doctors specializing in facial surgery. There are 650 women's hairdressers. Perfume makers number a round 190, and perfume shops about 1,000.

Supposing the Catholic women of Paris took the oath of the church sufficiently serious to go

For, he argues, if being fashionably clothed was to be considered sinful, then it follows that cosmetics, shingled hair, face masques and all the rest of the price-less adjuncts to beauty would be also taboo.
